K. W. DALY NEW PRESIDENT OF THE BANK OF CHARLEROI

Institution Had the Most Prosperous Year in its History in 1920

FOOTINGS ALMOST 4 MILLIONS

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bank of Charleroi, held the first week in January, the following board of directors was elected: T. L. Daly, John C. McKean, Wm. I. Berryman, C. F. Thompson, T. P. Grant, W. W. Jimeson, T. A. Mellon, T. R. Duvall and C. S. Bliss.

Owing to the serious illness at that time T. L. Daly, President of the bank, the board was not organized at the usual time, and following his death which occurred later in January action was deferred in the election of his successor.

On Thursday, February 17th, the board met for organization, at which time Kerfoot W. Daly was elected a director to succeed his father, and the board then organized by the election of the following officers:

President, Kerfoot W. Daly; vice president, John C. McKean; cashier, C. S. McKean; assistant cashiers, Thomas R. Eagye and Ewing S. Todd; chief bookkeeper, C. S. Bateman; bookkeepers, N. S. Hall and Miss Alice Mallabone, stenographers, Miss Ethel Kegg and Miss Hallie Risbeck; clerk, John Strausser.

The Bank of Charleroi was organized in 1898, at which time T. L. Daly was elected president, which office he filled until the time of his death. John S. McKean was elected as vice president at the organization of the institution and still holds that position. Kerfoot W. Daly, the new president of the bank, was elected assistant cashier of the bank at the time of its organization, John S. Eberman being the cashier. Mr. Daly was advanced to cashier in 1903, and served in that capacity until February 17, 1921, when he was elected president. C. S. McKean came to the bank as a clerk in 1901, promoted to Teller in January 1903, assistant cashier in January, 1911, and Cashier on the 17th of February, 1921.

The bank enjoyed the most prosperous year in its history in 1920, the deposits having increased over seven hundred thousand dollars, and its totals over seven hundred and fifth thousand dollars. At the close of business in 1920 the stockholders were paid a dividend of 25 per cent on their stock, while $40,000 was added to the surplus fund.

On December 31, 1920, the deposits of the bank were $3,393,464.95; surplus and profits, $443,816.16, and the total footings, $3,924,396.11.

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE IN ATLANTIC CITY

Prof. T. L. Pollock will leave Saturday evening for Atlantic City, N. J., to attend the meeting of the Superintendents' Division of the National Educational Association, which will meet in that city next week. The sessions begin on Monday and will continue until Thursday, the 3rd of March. While in Atlantic City Prof. Pollock will be located at the Hotel Princess.

IMPORTANT GAME AT MONONGAHELA

The Charleroi high school basket ball team will go to Monongahela City this evening, to try conclusions with the high school team of that city. The game is an important one inasmuch as it will have considerable bearing on the matter of the county championship. The local team holds the advantage over those it has already played and with fair success against Washington, Charleroi will undoubtedly be in line for the distinction. Monongahela City boys, while out of the running in regard to the county championship, are an organization capable of putting up a fine game, and Charleroi will have to play hard to win this evening. We need the game. A large delegation is expected to accompany the team to our sister city. Game called at 8 p. m.

OPTIONS ACCEPTED BY FRICK COMPANY

It was announced on Thursday that the H. C. Frick Coke company had finally accepted options on the surface of the Coulson and Brown farms at Ginger Hill, making the first cash payments in closing the purchases. The price paid was not made public.

Purchase of these farms is the initial step of the Frick concern for the development of a vast acreage of coal lands in that section of the county. A mining town will be built and surveyors have already gone over the ground and staked it off.

This indicates that building of the town is contemplated for the near future. In the transaction just completed the firm gets possession of the properties by the first of April, but the Coulson and Brown families can remain on them for another year if they so desire. With the purchase of the Coulson and Brown surface, which includes 200 and 55 acres respectively, the Frick company now has a total of 400 acres of surface in the Ginger Hill district, having previously purchased the Williams farm, and the Keenan tract. Developments of a press as soon as weather conditions are favorable.

COSTS PLACED ON THE PROSECUTOR

An interesting and unusual case was heard before Alderman R. L. Elwood in Monongahela on Tuesday afternoon last, when a foreigner residing at Van Voorhis brought charges against Mrs. Janet Jones, a school teacher in Fallowfield township, charging her with assault and battery. The prosecutor alleged that his eight year old daughter, Natalie Percoli, was punished by the teacher for some infraction of the school rules and when the child arrived home she had marks on her body, which the child claimed the teacher had caused by the punishment.

The matter was taken up by the township school authorities who requested a trial by jury and six prominent citizens of Monongahela were empaneled as jurors. Attorney Clarence Devore represented the plaintiff, and Roy I. Carson of Charleroi, represented the defendant. After the case had been heard the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty," and placed the costs on the plaintiff. It was shown that the child had not been severely punished and that the case was brought out of spite. The costs amounted to over $40. Out of the 40 pupils enrolled in the school taught by Mrs Jones only five are Americans.

COMMITTEE WILL PASS ON KOMA'S SANITY

A committee will be appointed to pass upon the mental condition of Frank Koma, alias Frank Smith, now in the Washington jail on a charge of arson. It is believed the man is insane and that nothing further will be done at this term. Koma was arrested in connection with the incendiary fires in Fayette county, but later brought to the Washington jail charged with firing buildings in Donora last summer. Koma was arrested later, charged with firing a garage in Webster. He was tried in the Westmoreland county courts and acquitted. At that time it was believed Koma was mentally unbalanced.

SLEDDING PARTY VISITS JAMES SPHAR HOME

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Sphar were surprised on Monday evening, February 21, when a four-horse sled load of friends came driving up to their home to spend the evening. The hours were spent in games and music, after which the ladies served supper, which included oysters as well as many other delicacies. Those present were Rev. and Mrs. McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Carson and family, Mr. and Mrs Ross Carson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lott Winnett and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Carson and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Will Sphar and family. The guests left at 1:30 and all reported a very pleasant evening.

MANY IDLE BOATMEN AT THE PRESENT TIME

Lock No. 4 is quite a haven at the present time for idle boatmen looking for a "berth" on towboats. The dullness of the river coal trade is responsible for quite a number of rivermen being out of a job at the present time, and they call quite frequently at locks along the river in the hope of obtaining a job from some passing boat. One year ago steamboats were hard pressed to get a sufficient number of men to fill out their crews.

IMPORTANT COMMITTEES NAMED BY THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Leading Features in Town Betterments to be Considered at Once

FAVOR BOROUGH AUDITORIUM

A very important meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce was held Thursday afternoon in the municipal building. Almost the entire board was present and unusual enthusiasm was displayed on the part of the board as the future possibilities of the Chamber of Commerce in this community. People seem to feel that the Chamber of Commerce is a panacea for all ill. The Chamber cannot undertake to do everything at once, but will deal with those things that seem to be of the most urgent importance at present and can more readily be accomplished.

The Committee on Committees, Chairman, Roy I. Carson, made its report to the Board, and as a result Walter Byerly, the president of the Chamber, appointed the following committees:

Parks and Playgrounds:
I. T. Daniel, chairman; Harry Geho, Harry L. Swickey, Minnie B. Richardson, J. R. Carroll.

Street Lighting:
W. H. Milliken, chairman, R. L. Barnhart, Michael Rosenbloom, D. G. Callihan, George Leith.

Borough Expansion:
Hugh E. Fergus, chairman, Tom P. Sloan, Chas. Speers, Frank Riva, Theo. J. Allen.

Housing:
Bruce Barnett, chairman, Chas. S. Bateman, T. D. Williamson, Frank C. Miller, George Newton.

The members of the Board of Directors discussed the possibility of having a chautauqua for the coming summer, and it was felt that it would not be wise at least for the Board to underwrite the nine hundred dollars necessary to guarantee the Chautauqua for this summer. However, there was a unanimous opinion that the municipal auditorium ought to be completed at the earliest possible time, and that a fine lecture course be arranged for, beginning next fall and extending through the winter and spring.

Borough expansion is inextricably bound up with Housing and Parks and Playgrounds. It seems to be necessary that the city expand in order to get space necessary or the parks and playgrounds, as well as new houses.

The committee on Street Lighting is making fine progress and a Forum in the interest of White Way Lighting will be held the latter part of next week. Mr. Davidson, consulting engineer of the Macbeth-Evans company was in consultation last evening with the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce in regard to the details of the White Way Lighting. Mr. Davidson has consented to appear on the program of the Forum meeting as an expert to give the necessary advice to the local committee. A questionairre is being sent out to a number of cities to gain additional information. The American City Bureau will furnish a comprehensive study which they have made.

COUNTY WILL CARE FOR GILMER CHILDREN

In the case of Thomas Gilmer, who was charged with neglect of his children, the family being found in very destitute circumstances in a little house on Lincoln avenue extension in December by the local authorities, the county will take care of the children. The case against Gilmer for alleged neglect is scheduled to be taken up in court at Washington on Monday.

ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY IN COURT

Miss Ella Gollick, indicted by the grand jury on a charge of felonious assault and battery, entered a plea of guilty in court at Washington on Thursday, and was sentenced to the State Industrial Home for Women at Muncy. The sentence was an indeterminate one. On the night of December 10, 1920, Miss Gollick shot and seriously wounded Ambrose Dooley, while he was walking along Fallowfield avenue, near Third street.

CONSPIRACY CASE COMES UP MONDAY

In court at Washington Thursday, the case against Harry J. Lyons, H. P. Lyons and John Budamer charged with conspiracy, was called before Judge McIlvaine, but was continued until next Monday, after the jury had been selected.

An effort was made to have this case continued until next term, but the court refused this. It seems that H. P. Lyons is in jail at Youngstown, Ohio, held there under $10,000 bail on a conspiracy charge. An effort will be made to have him brought back to this county on Monday for trial.

In this case the three defendants are charged with entering into a fake land sale. It is alleged they sold Anton Maritch of Charleroi, one-third interest in certain lands in Ohio for $2,000. After an investigation was made it is alleged it was found they did not own the land.

WHO DETERMINES CREDIT?

A man's credit is the measure of his worth in the opinion of his associates—upon this credit rests in a large measure his business success.

Queer Word Explained.

The real derivation of the word "esquire" is, as everyone will remember, from "escayer," old-French for "shieldbearer," and so came to be applied to the chief retainers of knights. When the feudal days passed the word remained.

Mark of Bondage.

Little Paul, visiting his cousins on the farm, had been taken down to see the pigs. Noticing several had rings in their noses, he said to his big brother: "Say, Bill, those pigs cannot be married, 'cause they are wearing rings."—Chicago American.

"Pheasant Shell."

This name is given to the shells of a gastropod mollusk of the family of Turbinidae, which are much valued for their beauty, suggesting by their gorgeous metallic tints the plumage of pheasants.

It is computed that from a tenth to a quarter of the cost of foodstuffs in the United States goes to pay for crates and other containers that are thrown away instead of being used a second time.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Executive Ears.

During the World war the following was one of the qualifications required of men: "Candidates for the listeners' school must be able to hear a snake sliding into a bottle of castor oil."—Idaho Yarn.

Derivation of Word "Gipsy."

The name "gipsy" is probably derived from "Egyptian," by which term the gipsies were known in the English statutes.

Modena Cathedral.

The cathedral at Modena, Italy, consecrated in 1184, is a well-designed Romanesque structure. The west facade is one of the best of its date in Italy. It has three round-arched portals, a gallery of graceful triple arcades which is continued around the church, a large wheel window and much interesting sculpture. There are two sculptured porches on the south side. The three-aisled interior contains sculpture and tombs. The Ghirlandina tower, the campanile of the cathedral, finished to the spire in 1319, is 315 feet high. The massive square lower stage, about 200 feet high, bears the slender spire, which springs from an octagon of two arcaded tiers and is pierced with flower-like openings. Other objects of interest are the art academy, university, picture gallery, library and the ducal palace. Modena became a Roman colony about 183 B. C. It was situated on the Aemilian way, and was a flourishing Roman city.

Enjoy the Sun and Prolong Life.

Once upon a time people worshiped the sun. It would help all of us city folks and country folks, if we acquired some of that respect for sunlight. Scientists may say this or that about the sun. They may agree or disagree with regard to certain theories of light, but the common everyday people are satisfied with the simple fact that sunlight is healing, that it breeds life, that it is the source of great beauty. People who live in the country do not appreciate sunlight, because they have so much of it. People who live in the city take the sun as a matter of course, a thing too obvious to think about, or else they forget it altogether.—Thrift Magazine.

Improved Camera.

Designed particularly for making motion pictures of birds and animals, a new French camera, with a speed of 250 exposures a second, is remarkable for its ingenious method of keeping the moving object in the field of the lens, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The sighting arm is so connected to the pivoted mirror that they move together in geometrical relation, and an image in the center of the finder is always reflected into the center of the camera lens, regardless of its position. The flight of birds, and even of projectiles, may thus be recorded for further study, the object being in about the same position on each picture.

Matter-of-Fact Genius.

You can best approach genius by adding value to whatever you touch. No task should be allowed to pass your hands without receiving benefit from contact with you. Painstaking fidelity and plodding accuracy never fail to bless whatever they touch. Men who work for the pay may slight things. Men who take pride in their output have regard to the product, knowing that the pay is bound to come when the job reflects the character of the man behind it. The fact is that men who really bear the stamp of genius think nothing about it. They are busy writing their names into well-done tasks.—Exchange.

Roses in Many Lands.

Those who associate the rose preeminently with England, are surprised to find mountains covered with roses in China, bushes of them; or to see tall trees uplifting in their arms climbing roses, whose lanky stems, having reached the summit, burst into flower, and roll down the other side in wave upon wave of blossom. In winter, they are beautiful, covered with orange or scarlet flask-shaped "hips." But though wild roses are far more varied and abundant in the mountains of Asia than they are in England, still England has its rosaries and pergolas; and is not the rose garden surely all its very own?

Folk songs differ from all other songs in being the expression, unhindered by culture or self-consciousness, of primitive emotions and aspirations. Their simplicity and directness, says the Christian Science Monitor, are undoubtedly strong elements in the charm they exercise, more especially as they often display within the limits of a simple form surprising capacity for complicated rhythmical effects. The feeling for rhythm is invariably the first musical faculty to show itself, and is, therefore, more developed than any other faculty in these primitive songs.

Some People Believe This.

Select the number of stars in a constellation, add to it the number of the date of your birth, and divide the whole by 12. Keep the result in your mind until you shake hands with some one, then add the letters in that person's name to what you have. Divide by seven and you will get the number of months before you are married. If it should run over 13, and be even, you will marry a young man; if uneven, an old man. If over twice 13 and even, she will be red headed; if uneven, he will be bald and rich.—Chicago Tribune.

Puss' Nine Lives.

Among the reasons for the cat's possession of its proverbial nine lives is the fact that its abdominal walls, though very thin are strangely strong and elastic under pressure. This is the reason that a cat lives through running over that would kill a dog. The cat also possesses wonderful recuperative power from starvation or ill-usage, a fact which does not justify cat owners in expecting their pets to fend for themselves in the matter of food.

PROFITS IN COAL.

Those who wonder why anthracite coal is selling for much more than war prices, in the midst of a season mild enough to cause an unusually light demand, will find a reasonable explanation in the figures for the profits of a number of companies presented by David L. Wing, statistician of the Federal Trade Commission, in a hearing before a Senate committee on the Calder bill for government regulation of the industry. It was shown, for example, that one corporation on a capital of $178,000 made a profit of $478,000 in the first nine months of last year. Another made a profit nearly equal to the capital invested. A third made 67 per cent. Among 51 other companies reported on, some earned 92 per cent last year and one or two cleared over 200 per cnt. Naturally these companies did not want their vast profits known, and Mr. Wing considerately avoided mention of their names.

The Secretary of Commerce has given his endorsement to the bill introduced by Congressman Leonidas C. Dyer of Missouri providing for the incorporation of tax exempt companies to further Aemrican trade with China. It is declared by Secretary Alexander that "American trade in China should be put on an equal footing with foreign competition it is forced to meet." It is probable that the measure will receive an early and favorable rport to the House, and there may be an opportunity to enact it into law before March 4th.

Once Dr. Pease, fanatical anti-tobacconist, even ventures to ask whether President McKinley, who smoked or the assassin who killed him, was guilty of the greater crime. This same Pease person asserts that the average child is "poisoned by tobacco before it is born" because the mother inhales the poisonous fumes of the father's cigar.

American lovers of Lord Dunsany's pen wil hardly be pleased to hear that he has been court-martialed and paid $100 fine to avoid going to jail for having one or two shot-guns in his castle. At this distance such treatment of a famous author and gallant veteran of the war looks like the most stupid thing yet done in Ireland.

Mere imprisonment is not effective. A well-seasoned pickpocket, aged 82, now in jail once more, confesses that he was arrested 23 times in 40 years and has spent a quarter of a century behind the bars. Once he got 20 lashes as well as four years in Delaware and ever after was careful to pick no more pockets in that State.

General Dawes is quoted as saying that if he had not pitched "hell and Maria" at that Congressional committee no attention would have been paid to his evidence. Unconventional method does receive notice when the conventional fails, as advertisers are aware.

THE POOR PRINCESS

According to a Tokio newspaper, all Japan is "shaken" over the question as to the choice of a wife by the Crown Prince of that country, and that in the commotion everywhere is involved the long-standing struggle between the extreme nationalists or chauvinists and the forces of progressive libertlism. No onecan fail to pity the poor young prince whose love afairs are tangled up in politics to such an extent. The situation seems medieval and Far Eastern indeed but under existing law is the young Prince of Wales much better off? Under the act of 1772 a prince of the royal house of Britain can not marry without the King's consent until he is 25, and even with parental approval he must give notice to the Privy Council, with twelve months grace, and finally he may please himself only if the two Houses of Parliament do not disapprove of his choice.

This law being still in force, no wonder its repeal is now suggested. But even with the old law repealed, the Prince of Wales would have none too much freedom of choice. Canending politicians may not wish to dictate, as in the case in Japan, but tradition and custom still demand royal blood and the field is further restricted now that Teutonic royalties are without the pale. With both Teutonic and Catholic royalties eliminated, the field of choice is so narrow that it looks as if the proposition to permit the Prince of Wales to marry into the British nobility will have to be seriously considered.

R. Tait McKenzie, sculptor and physical educator, has called forth feminine protest and got himself into trouble by saying that the modern American male youth has retained more of the classic beauty of the human form than has the young female of the species.

The Protectionist—The present Congress is not to blame for the situation, nor is it its fault if hastiy measures, unsound in theory and practice, are its only apparent means to meet the conditions which confront us.

Peculiar London Street.

What is the most curious street name in London? It would be hard, perhaps, to find an odder one than Cat and Custard Pie Lane in Chelsea, which in all probability dates from very ancient days [illegible] as the commonest object [illegible]. It has been suggested that [illegible] straight steps of grass [illegible] various holdings of land [illegible] and that we owe its name to the circumstance that one of these cartways or usages was crooked. The history of London street names has endless fascination and interest.

Wild Geese in the British Isles.

The tribe of wild geese of Europe are birds of mystery. Their nesting grounds, and thus their true homes, are in the far north, in the wilds of Spitzbergen, and on the inaccessible island of Kolguev. It is only as visitors that they come to the British islands, for in the regions that approach the pole winter comes early, and thus all bird life is driven southward, flying at incredible speed on the arms of the north wind as they make for their winter quarters in more hospitable lands.

Capri.

I wish you could have walked down to the Piccola Marina with me yesterday. It is down one of those wonderful roads hewn out of the side of the cliff, which one grows used to here, and I came back up the old steps. Such views! The sea in afternoon light, the Faraglioni rocks below, so often painted and photographed, the splendid cliffs of Capri to right and left! . . .—James M. Taylor (Letters).

Monarch's Mummy Finally at Rest.

The mummy of the celebrated Egyptian king, Rameses II, reposes in the Egyptian museum in Cairo. The mummy was first interred at Bibanet-Muluk and was subsequently concealed from grave robbers in the shaft at Deir-el-Bebri, where it was found in 1881, and later removed to the museum mentioned.

The Island of Guam.

The island of Guam, ceded to the United States by Spain in 1898, is 5,044 miles from San Francisco and 1,596 from Manila. It is 30 miles long and 180 around and has a population of 13,000.

Imperfections Have Use.

Inexpensive Palm.

A pretty, inexpensive palm can be grown from one or two seeds of a common dried date. The soil should be rich and the plant should be well watered.

Good Always at Hand.

If we will take the good we find asking no questions, we shall have heaping measures. Everything good is on the highway.—Emerson.

The Ant's "Parasol."

The so-called parasol ants of Brazil get their name from their habit of marching along in single file, each one with a piece of green leaf held over its head. These scraps of leaves are taken to underground chambers, well chewed, and allowed to ferment and decay in a mass, through which the mycelium of a fungus soon begins to run in white threads. When little mushroom buttons have started to develop the workers bite them off and feed them to the baby ants.

Every Great Book.

Every great book is an action, and every great action is a book. All who would study with advantage in any art whatsoever, ought to betake themselves to the reading of some sure and certain books oftentimes over: for to read many books produceth confusion, rather than learning like as those who dwell everywhere are not anywhere at home.—Martin Luther.

A Crowning Incident.

On a Cornish tombstone a rather shocking version of Proverbs 12:4, precedes the announcement of a lady's death: "A virtuous woman is [illegible] her husband." Space did not permit of "a crown" being cut in full, so an ingenious stonecutter substituted this excellent abbreviation.—Glasgow Herald.

OWE CAPTURE TO CURIOSITY

Simple Process by Which Natives Make Prisoners of Active Denizens of the Jungle.

The native method of capturing the howling monkeys of South America is by placing some sugar inside a nut shell which is very large and at the same time has a small opening left in one end when the meat is removed. These hunters watch the trees, and after spying one or more monkeys select a time when the little creatures are watching them and put the nut shells on the ground. Then they walk away, and are scarcely hidden when the monkeys cautiously descend from the trees and begin to examine the shells. Curiosity and the lump of sugar inside prompt them to slip their hands into the openings, and after grasping the sugar they endeavor to remove their hands, but while doubled up they are too large to come out. Of course, the monkeys could release the sugar and withdraw their hands easily, yet their inquisitive nature and love of sugar are so strongly developed that they refuse to do so. The hunters are peering through the undergrowth, and just as the animals get their hands into the shells they leap out and give chase to them, knowing that as long as their curiosity has not been satisfied they will cling to the lump of sugar. These howling monkeys are clumsy enough on a level surface, but when one hand is incased in a big shell glove as large as a coconut, it is a comical sight to see these active creatures trying to climb a tree. As a result, they are soon captured by the hunters and placed in large sacks to await the next visit of a purchasing agent for some menagerie. This inquisitive nature of the monkey tribe was well known by the ancients, one of the old fables describing how a monkey endeavored to secure a handful of some delicacy from a narrow-necked jar and then withdraw its hand while holding it.

THINKING IN STRAIGHT LINES

That Is Simple Formula That Comprises the Whole Secret of Thinking Successfully.

"A straight line is the shortest distance between two points." Every high-school boy learns to repeat this axiom. If more of them learned to think it we would have a greater supply of executive ability. For in these short ten words, embodied in every geometry book, is concealed the big secret of success that most of us spend all our lives trying to find.

Thinking in straight lines is the secret to thinking successfully. After the plan is made the execution is easy. So in planning department systems or in passing judgment upon systems that others have planned the first and big step is to apply to every move that we make the philosophy that is involved in this often-repeated and often-forgotten axiom.

Let me call attention first to the fact that this axiom presupposes two points: Before you can draw your straight line you must know definitely and accurately where these two points are. You must know your starting point and the objective that you wish to reach. Many people attempt to draw their paths of progress without knowing definitely from where they start or to where they want to go. That is why so many personal and business progress lines are zigzag spirals and labyrinths that do not get anywhere.—John Van Deventer, in Industrial Management.

W. H. Mallock, in a new book of memoirs, tells of a certain occasion when, being with Swinburne at a friend's house, Swinburne drank port wine, became talkative and told how he came to write three poems of which he was proud. In Mallock's words: "Then, like a man waking up from a dream, Swinburne turned to our host, and said nervously, 'Can you give me another glass of port?' His glass was filled, he emptied it at a single draught, and then lay back in his chair like a child who had gone to sleep, the actual fact being as his host soon recognized, he was drunk. . . . He was not, I think, intemperate in the sense that he drank too much. A very little intoxicated him."

"The Colonel."

The reverence of the late Czar Nicholas for the memory of his father manifested itself occasionally in strange ways. For instance, he, the supreme chief of the Russian army, never consented to assume a higher rank in the army than that of colonel, to which he had attained under the preceding reign. This touching but somewhat puerile act of filial piety did not help his prestige in military circles, where he came to be referred to always as "the colonel," a sobriquet which in the end savored of mockery and certain disdain.—London Opinion.

"Single-Speech Hamilton."

Now that women have come into their own in politics, we cannot but wonder if we will ever have a woman orator who can equal the record of one William Gerard Hamilton, chancellor of the exchequer in Ireland in 1775.

We are told that he received the sobriquet of "Single-Speech Hamilton," because he delivered on the 13th of November, 1775, a speech which electrified the house, but after that memorable first effort he never spoke again, or rather, we should say, he never "speeched" again.—E. B. B.

AIDED ITS BLIND COMPANION

Australian Stockman Tells of Bullock That Took Care of Another Which Was Sightless.

Peter S. Mitchell, a stock raiser from Melbourne, Australia, says that the cattle business is at present the best in the history of Australia. He says that his people are hard at work restoring the country to normal and that they are very anxious to get the world trade back to pre-war conditions.

"My father was first to bring the Black Poll cattle into Australia 40 years ago," said Mr. Mitchell at New York, "and they have developed to be the best for our section. They are hardy, flourish on ferns, tree leaves and bark, where other cattle would starve, and they grow to great size, with weight evenly distributed, and the fat running in hair lines through the rump steaks even. There is a quick market for anything on the hoof that is fairly fat, and prices are very good.

"We discovered a blind bullock in one of the herds that came in, and another bullock had adopted it and fathered it all the time. It was found to be blind only when we noticed that its companion signaled to it constantly and led it to water, through gates and narrow runs. If at any time it got lost its friend would never rest until he had located it.

"None of the other bullocks paid any attention to the blind one and the protection the foster parent gave to the unfortunate bullock was a never ending source of comment and speculation. When both, fattened after 18 months on our place, were driven to the shipping station 60 miles distant the blind one was led through the difficult places by his friend and generally cared for day and night."

WANT LANGUAGE UP TO DATE

Common Sense Behind "Literary Revolution" That Is Now Prevailing in China.

What is termed the literary revolution in China aims at a reform of the language used in books, magazines, newspapers and public discussion. The outsider will jump to the conclusion that this means an attempt to encourage a phonetic substitute for ideographic characters. Not at all. There is a movement to supplement ideographs with phonetic signs to show their pronunciation, the aim being quite as much to standardize pronunciation as make it easier to learn to read. But this movement arouses no such interest and excitement as the literary revolution.

The latter is an attempt to make the spoken language the standard language for print. Literary Chinese is as far away from the vernacular as Latin is from English, perhaps further. It is a speech of 2,000 years ago, adorned and frozen. To learn it is to learn another language. The reformers were actuated by the practical impossibility of making education really universal when in addition to the difficulties of mastering the ideographs, children in the elementary schools are compelled to get their education in terms of a foreign language.

They are actuated even more by the belief that it was not possible to develop a literature which shall express the life of today unless the spoken language, the language of the people, is used. Apart from the employing and enriching of the vulgar tongue, it is not possible to develop general discussion of the issues of today, social, moral, economic.—New Republic.

To Develop Wild Pears.

The world's largest stock of pear seedlings of a wild, blight-resisting variety found in Manchuria, is located on the Loma Rica ranch near Grass Valley, Cal. The young trees are from seeds brought directly from China and number about 100,000.

Three pomological experts from the United States Department of Agriculture, Professors Allison, Wright and Kingsman, recently inspected the stock and approved the experimental work.

The original trees, known as the Pyrus usuriensis, are found growing in the ancient burying ground of the kings of the Manchurian dynasty, and it is only since the overthrow of the dynasty that the seeds became available. The tract is said to be vast and to be grown to trees of immense size.

By grafting the commercial varieties of pears upon this stock good results are expected to be obtained.

Pyrenees Put to Work.

Efforts to harness the water power going to waste in the Pyrenees and transform it into electricity are being intensified.

Engineers have surveyed entire mountain ranges and have succeeded already in controlling many torrents and making them furnish power. Altogether 200,000 horsepower now is furnished and capital amounting to 700,000,000 pesetas have been invested. Every day sees additions to the amount of power available, and engineers employed in the work estimate that in a few years Catalonia will be able to do without coal.

A Change of Calling.

"You are going to have some sad disillusionments," said the mysterious Egyptian.

"I've already had one," said the client.

"How is that?"

"When this carnival company came through here last year you were selling 'hot dogs' and pink lemonade."—[illegible]

Dangerous Maladies.

There are more deaths from measles and whooping cough than from scarlet fever. Greater efforts in school hygiene would seem to be the only way in which this problem can be coped with successfully, combined with the education of parents in the necessity for the observation of quarantine and isolation procedures even for these simple diseases.

No "National" in Title.

There is now only one national bank in the United States which does not have "national" as a part of its name. It is the Bank of North America of Philadelphia. A special act of congress is required to permit a national bank to operate as such without indicating the fact that it is a national bank in its name.

Experiment with Air.

A man wished to measure the force that drives the sap upward in trees and shrubs. He cut a vine and tied a bladder over its end. In two hours the bladder was greatly distended, and inside of three hours it burst with a plop, so great was the force that drives sap upward.

Melons.

Melons were first extensively cultivated in France early in the Seventeenth century, but were known to the ancients from the commencement of our era. The Egyptians grew them. They are said to have been carried to America by Columbus and to the Malay archipelago by the Portuguese.

Spanish Tongue Supreme.

Together with Portuguese, which is practically a dialect, Spanish is the language of the whole western hemisphere south of the Rio Grande, a region of inestimable natural wealth and vast trade possibilities.

A Noble Language.

Painting, or art generally, as such, with all its technicalities, difficulties, and particular ends, is nothing but a noble and expressive language, invaluable as the vehicle of thought, but by itself, nothing.—John Ruskin.

Remarkable Family.

A woman with six young "hopefuls" in assorted sizes entered the day coach. She selected a double seat and occupied one-half herself. The oldest child lay down on the opposite seat and the other five sat on his prostrate body. By and by the conductor appeared, and upon being handed one full-fare ticket he sized up the little group and said: "You'll have to pay for some of these children. What is the age of the oldest?" To which the lady answered tartly: "Go on with ye; the oldest one is under five."

Man Cannot Sense Coming Rain.

It is somewhat extraordinary, but man is the only animal that cannot naturally perceive approaching rain. All other animals show uneasiness when rain is coming. At such times dogs get restless, cats sneeze and wash their ears, frogs croak with a loud, harsh noise, owls screech, peacocks scream and ducks and geese are unusually noisy. This is said to be due to the relaxation of their nerves by the damp air, which makes them uneasy.

Polish Melodies.

The Poles have remained singularly free from eastern influence. Their melodic invention is sometimes rather limited, but their tunes are always wonderfully original, and they often make use of difficult intervals which would seem to be more suitable for an instrument than for the voice. The effect of these songs is sad but full of interest and in hearing them it is easy to realize that Chopin was a thoroughly "national" composer.

Thackeray and Dickens.

It has often been observed that persons who care greatly for the writings of Dickens seldom care greatly for the writings of Thackeray, while those who care greatly for the writings of Thackeray seldom care greatly for the writings of Dickens. The reason is plain. Dickens deals with the masses, Thackeray with the classes; in the one we find democracy, in the other aristocracy.

The dory is one of the mackerel family with a highly notable ancestry. He has many peculiarities of form and color, but none more marked than the two vivid red spots on his sides. Tradition says that it was from a dory that St. Peter took the coin with which to pay the tribute, and that the two spots mark the place where he held the fish between his thumb and finger.

Tearless for the Spartans.

The "tearless battle" was fought 368 B. C., when a force of Arcadians and Argives endeavored to cut off a Spartan army, under Archidamus III, in a narrow defile in Laconia. They were repulsed with heavy loss, and not a single Spartan was killed, whence the engagement came to be called the "tearless battle."—Literary Digest.

Long Range Fire.

A gossip is never willing to repeat unkind remarks to your face. We recently heard one when accused of this try to justify herself by saying: "Gossip, madam, is a social attack conducted on the approved principles of modern warfare—you are not supposed to see the person at whom you are shooting."—Boston Transcript.

CROUP

The quick gasping cough of croup is something that every mother dreads. It comes in the dead of night when medical assistance is hard to obtain. That is why Glessco has been a household article in millions of homes for forty years. It gives immediate relief. In fact Glessco is the only preparation which can give relief from croup in fifteen minutes without vomiting.

Careful mothers everywhere depend on Glessco. It does not upset the delicate child's stomach, and carries the offending substances right out of the system.

All druggists sell Glessco in 50c bottles. It is worth ten times as much in time of need.

One Thousand Miles From Land.

It is possible for a ship to reach a point in the ocean where it is 1,000 miles from land in any direction. In fact, this can be done at several points. By leaving San Francisco or Vancouver and sailing into the north Pacific a spot is reached where there is no land, not even an islet, for a thousand miles in any direction. So, too, sailing from the southern point of ancient Kamchatka southeastward, a ship will reach a point more than a thousand miles from land, the nearest to the north being the Aleutian islands, and to the south the Sandwich islands, or Hawaii. In the Southern Indian ocean it is possible to sail a thousand miles out from the southern points of Australia and New Zealand, and still be as far away from any other land; and the same may be done in a westerly direction from Cape Horn.

"Overland Route."

The term "Overland Route" was applied to the old-time route to California as distinguished from the route via the isthmus of Panama. The term was first used, however, for the route from Europe to India via Egypt, the desert and Suez. It was in contradistinction to the Cape route (by the Cape of Good Hope), which was by water only. It became more applicable in 1837, when the route was across the European continent by Marseilles; in 1845, when that by Trieste was followed, and in 1872, when that via the Mount Cenis tunnel and Brindisi came into use. The opening of the Suez canal in 1869 having all but superseded the Cape route, the term "overland route" as applied to this route is now obsolescent.

Don't Be a Lobster.

We frequently hear used in a slang way, "he is a regular lobster." Now there may be more truth than slang in the expression, because there are a lot of human lobsters in the world. A lobster when left high and dry among the rocks has not enough energy to work his way back to the sea, but waits for the tide to bring the sea to him. If it does not come, he stays right where he is and dies, too lazy to put forth any effort himself. Many men are stranded on the rocks of business. Instead of putting forth their own energies they are waiting for some grand friendly billow of good fortune to set them afloat.—Thrift Magazine.

Holly Trees.

The holly tree is common in England, and its glossy leaves and gleaming berries shine out in copse and roadside hedge as plentifully as the wild roses or the blackberry bushes. The holly trees in the New Forest are more vigorous than anywhere else on earth. They sometimes grow to be 60 feet high, with huge trunks two or three feet thick, and wide-reaching branches. With their smooth, slate-gray stems and gleaming foliage of green ivory, they are the most striking trees in England, not excepting even the colossal oaks and yews, which constantly draw the traveler's attention.

Trees Trimmed by Machinery.

Camphor is derived from the twigs clipped from the tree at regular intervals and these clippings have heretofore been done by hand which made it a tedious and rather expensive operation. An American inventor has come to the rescue of this industry by inventing a machine to do this work. This machine strips the camphor trees of the leaves and small branches without injury to the limbs or impairment of the productive capacity of the trees. The machine carries its own gasoline engine. As it is drawn between the rows of camphor trees its cutting knife cuts off the leaves and small branches.

Incessant activity is one of the methods women take of committing a slow but sure suicide. Trying to do two things at once is another fatal measure, with the added result that neither thing is done well. A change of work, even to fancy-work, we are told, is rest, but the hard-working housewife might well consider that inestimable restorative power will be found in a few minutes of wide-awake repose, although few women have learned to enjoy it. A daily ten minutes' rest in a recumbent position, with every nerve and muscle relaxed, will do wonders for a woman whose nerves are on the ragged edge.

Much American Wood Wasted.

At the fountain source of our timber resources—the growing woodlands—16 per cent is squandered in tops, limbs and stumps; 10 per cent is represented in edgings and trimmings; sawdust takes a toll of nearly 11 per cent; 10 per cent is wasted in slabs; bark represents nearly 11 per cent of waste; something over 5 per cent is lost in seasoning; careless manufacturing loses 2½ per cent, while the planing mill renders irrecoverable still another small increment of something in excess of 1 per cent.

Chile Coast Desolate.

Of all the desolate parts of the world there are few which can compare with the seacoast of Chile. As a rule, the steamers which run up and down the west coast of South America keep within sight of land and for more than a thousand miles one will see nothing but bleak, brown mountains, rising straight from the edge of the ocean, without a tree or blade of grass to vary the monotony. Seaports are few and the only time that anything green can be found is when some nitrate port is reached.
